NEW SCHOOL YEAR IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

On September 1st many children in Czechoslovak towns and villages have been welcomed in new school-buildings, built up during the last year.

XXX

102.751 The opening of a new school in Kolovč village has been an important event of the Plzeň region. In the pre-Munich bourgeois Republic Kolovč citizens and their neighbours in vain implored local administrative offices to build a new school. Now they have a beautiful new school with central heating and flowing water, with spacious school-rooms, a laboratory etc.

XXX

102.759 In the agricultural district of Netvōrice, Benešov region, a new school has been built recently. 193 children will attend this school, 28 of which arrived on Sept.1st for the first time in their lives into the first preparatory class.

1 Snapshot from the opening of the school-year 1954/55 in the new elementary eight-year school in Netvōrice. The little ones, who arrived for the first time to school, came with their mothers, who watched how they made friends with their teacher.

XXX

102.758 The new 58th eight-year elementary school in Prague -Strašnice is one of the most up-to-date schools of the capital. The school has a spacious gymnasium, bathrooms, showers, rooms where children of employed parents spend their after-school hours, preparing their home-work and playing, a dining room with a well equipped kitchen, a polytechnical workshop and an ambulatory. Presentation of this school on Sept.1st was a happy event for parents and children of Prague-Strašnice.

FEZ PRODUCTION IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA.

102.185 Fezes, produced in the little south Bohemian town of Strakonice have a famous tradition on the world market.

The history of the production dates from the 18th century. At that time poor stocking-makers of Strakonice took their goods to Vienna and Linz factories, where they received the expert finishing touch. Local factory owners drew great profits from the production and export of fezes. But already in the 19th century the stocking makers of Strakonice began an independent fez production, instructed by a French stocking-maker, soldier from the Napoleonic wars, who stayed at Strakonice.

The great fez works in Strakonice to-day belong to the working people. Their factory ranks among the best Czechoslovak light industry works. They have been awarded the Red Banner of the Government and of the Central Committee of the Revolutionary Trade Union Movement /ROH/ for their successful fulfilling of the plan.

- 2 In 1833 the stocking makers' guild attached a little cap into their emblem. The ancient banner is kept in the municipal museum of Strakonice.
- 28 The finished fezes passing through the brushing machine.
- 29 According to the customers's wish and national customs, some fezes are being embroidered by machine. Photo shows: Skilled embroiderer Milena Boušová at work.
- 11 The shape of the fezes and their embroidery differs according to the country of their destination and according to the rank of their bearer. Photo shows: A little display of some of the various fezes, produced at Strakonice.
- 7 Overseas customers design their special packing of deliveries, which is precisely kept. Photo shows: Packing a delivery for an Indian customer in Bombay.

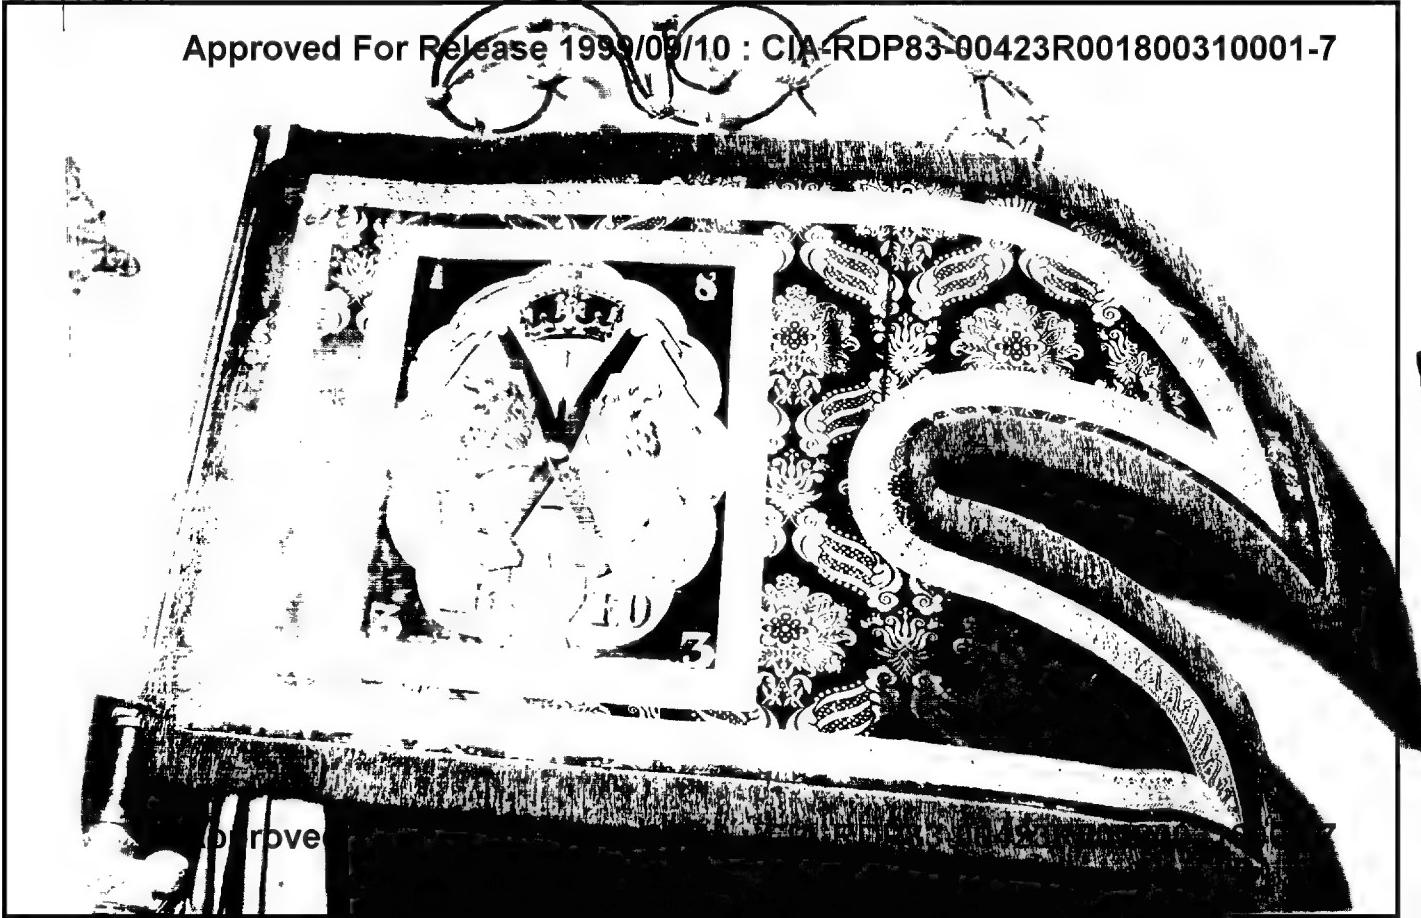

BUILDING UP BRATISLAVA.

102.476 One of the many new buildings, that grow up rapidly in the capital of Slovakia, Bratislava, is the new building of the Winter Stadium. In this building will be a new hotel, dressing-rooms and tribunes.
